

Is it time for a Twenty-First Century Constitution for the UK?

As the UK looks to the future under a new sovereign, the question of what it means to live in a constitutional monarchy has been subject to increased scrutiny.

Former UN and World Bank advisor Frank Vibert proposes a formal constitution to enshrine the principle that the people shall be sovereign, in this 2018 lecture at Wolfson College, Oxford.

Listen:

A Twenty-First Constitution for the UK

Download the Podcast

The Unfulfilled Promise of the Brazilian Constitution

200 million Brazilians go to the polls next month in an election that, by deciding the future of the Amazon rainforest, could have implications for all of us.

We look back on the unfulfilled promise of the much-heralded Brazilian constitution of 1988 and ask: Why is it that a constitution replete with protections for socio-economic rights has produced the dysfunctional democracy of today's Brazil?

The Unfulfilled Promise of the Brazilian Constitution

Read the Opinion Piece

Justice after Atrocity: A Cosmopolitan Pluralist Approach

The success of the Ukrainian counter-offensive has been tempered by further revelations of Russian war crimes, which begs the question: by what means can perpetrators of crimes against humanity be held to account?

This lecture by the Director of the Transnational Law Institute, Mark Drumbl, explores the potential and limits of liberal criminal law as a method of accountability in the aftermath of atrocity.

Justice after Atrocity: A Cosmopolitan Pluralist Approach

Download the Podcast

Human rights in Iran

With protests continuing over the death of Mahsa Amini, the woman arrested by Iran's notorious morality police for removing her hijab, we offer a first-hand account of the human rights situation in Iran since the Iran–Iraq war, through the experience of international human rights lawyer Kaveh Moussavi.

Listen to the Podcast

The Foundation for Law, Justice and Society | 01865 284433 | info@fljs.org | www.fljs.org

STAY CONNECTED

